DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).
3. Claims 1-2, 4, 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Glasgow et al. in view of Matsushita.

Glasgow et al. have pressure sensor 10, disclosed for a trunk lid. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide the claimed switching action of Glasgow et al. with a determination means as seen in figure 5 of Matsushita in order to safely operate the trunk lid.

As to claim 2, the sensor of Matsushita is a piezoelectric sensor, obvious to use in Glasgow et al. as a known alternative in the art.

Art Unit: 3612

As to claim 4, a time function based in the determination means is deemed to be common knowledge in this art.

As to claim 5, both Glasgow et al. and Matsushita have the sensor mounted in a resilient cushion.

4. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Glasgow et al. in view of Matsushita as applied to claim 2 above, and further in view of Kramer et al.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to provide in the references above a nonlinear flexible member as taught by Kramer at 28 in order to tailor the crush characteristic of the cushion.

5. Claims 6-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Glasgow et al. in view of Matsushita as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Toyota, JP 2000096913.

Paragraph 3 above is incorporated by reference. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to provide in the references above a drive means for the lid as taught by Toyota in order to reduce effort of moving the lid. Matsushita teaches the control means, with release of pinching being common knowledge in this art in order to reduce injury.

Applicant may seasonally challenge, for the official record in this application, this and any other statement of judicial notice in timely manner in response to this office action. Please specify the exact statement to be challenged. Applicant is reminded, with respect to the specific challenge put forth, of the duty of disclosure under Rule 56 to disclose material which is pertinent to patentability including claim rejections challenged by applicant.

As to claim 7, time delay prior to action is deemed to be common knowledge in this art.
